dotProject

dotProject is a project management software tool, particularly suitable for all those engaged in project planning, creating, management or participation.

It is especially beneficial for project managers who can use it for setting up the main parameters of every project:

- Deadlines
- Resources (human and material)
- Activities
- Inter-activity dependence
- Key activities

dotProject is also beneficial to all project participants, because, by using it, they:

- Exchange information on activities so that all project participants are kept up-to-date
- Attach additional documents (Word, PDF, etc), so that they would be easily accessible to everyone
- Discuss problems with associates and clients
- Create a document repository related to the project
- Have an archive of all earlier communication at their disposal

One of the functionalities of the dotProject is generation of Gant diagrams, which allow for easy visual tracking of project dynamics according to the activities, and serve as an invaluable tool for every project manager.

Support

dotProject is a free software – anyone can download it from us, free of charge, and use it without having to pay the cost of the license

An abundance of material can be found on the Internet, which can provide information on how to use and update the dotProject, and also show how to establish the infrastructure required for the correct functioning of the dotProject.

If you believe that the publicly accessible material does not satisfy your needs, and/ or you want someone to help you and your employees throughout the entire process of preparation, installation, training, usage and functionality updating, we can offer you our services.

We are experts in project management, but, above all, we adapt to the needs of our clients, which enables us to offer you comprehensive service.

Our dotProject development team is comprised of programmers, trainers and managers who can make your company's business more efficient, increase your profit and help you manage your projects with more efficiency, comfort and conviction.
